Production development On July 19, 2018, it was announced that DC Universe had given a series order to Stargirl, consisting of thirteen episodes. The pilot was written by Geoff Johns, who also produces executive alongside Greg Berlanti, Sarah Schechter and Melissa Carter (who is co-showrunner with Johns). [27] The production companies involved in the series are Mad Ghost Productions, Berlanti Productions and Warner Bros. Television. The series was said to be a Reimagining of Stargirl. [27] On July 6, 2020, The CW renewed the series for a second season, prompting the series to move exclusively to the network as an original CW series. [28] Johns' writing described Stargirl as a similar tone to 1980s films such as E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial and Back to the Future. The beginning of the series sees the deaths of the original members of the Society of Justice of America (USA). With the younger generation occupying his mantle, Johns said his paths are not complete. They don't know where they're going to be or what they're going to be. And so, there are all kinds of mistakes they can make and the decisions they can make, and who knows what their final destination will be?.. It does for a lot of fun and a lot of unpredictability. Members of the Injustice Society reflect those on the JSA team, with Johns mocking that almost everyone who has been members of the Society of Injustice in comics would appear in the series. Speaking to classic JSA members such as Alan Scott and Jay Garrick, Johns called them the elderly statesman and they talk and exist at the JSA with their legacies ... throughout the show. There were also plans in the future for things. For the first season, star Brec Bassinger felt that the original Doctor Mid-Nite, Charles McNider would play an important role to play, while Johns added that the season would establish the Seven Soldiers of Victory as the first superhero team before the JSA and explore cosmic Staff history. [2] Regarding the death of Henry King, Jr., Johns revealed that he always had a finite history, going from this almost universe bully to possibly a redeemed hero, then ultimately die protecting his new friends when confronted by his father, while also learning a lesson that Courtney Courtney about him and apologizing to Yolanda. Johns spoke to actor Jake Austin Walker before signing on to play the character to inform him of his and discuss the character with him. The character's return to the first season with his father pretending to be his son was made to subvert the superhero trophy no one ever dies. [20] Yolanda Montez's struggle to kill Brainwave will be a big part of the second season. Johns added that compared to Rick Tyler, who is starting to turn a corner after overcoming his anger over the death of his parents, Yolanda is turning the other way... She has lost in her own world, thinking about what she has done since she was not prepared to kill someone, unlike Rick. In addition, in the second season more motivations will be explored by the surviving members of the Society of Injustice. [20] Casting in September 2018, it was announced that Brec Bassinger had been cast as Courtney Whitmore / Stargirl. [1] Johns called the casting of Stargirl a difficult process, auditioning hundreds of actresses for the role. On why Bassinger was perfect for the role, Johns said: Immediately... I knew it was Courtney. She has the humour, she has the enthusiasm, the energy, the innate optimism, and Brec really embodies who Stargirl is. [2] In November 2018, the following roles were chosen: Anjelika Washington as Beth Chapel / Doctor Mid-Nite,[29][2] Yvette Monreal as Yolanda Montez / Wildcat, and Christopher James Baker as Henry King / Brainwave. [30] In January 2019, Luke Wilson was cast as Pat Dugan / S.T.R.I.P.E.[9] Amy Smart joined the cast as Barbara Whitmore the following month,[4] along with Neil Jackson as Jordan Mahkent / Icicle, Tra Romano as Mike Dugan,[4] Hunter Sansone as Cameron,[4][10] and Cameron Gellman as Rick Tyler / Hourman.[31][12] with Jake Austin Walker as Henry King Jr. and Meg DeLacy played Cindy Burman, rounding up the cast. [6] In December 2018, the following members of the Justice Society of America were chosen: Joel McHale as Sylvester Pemberton / Starman,[19] Lou Ferrigno Jr. as Rex Tyler / Hourman,[22] Brian Stapf as Ted Grant / Wildcat,[23] and Henry Thomas as Charles McNider / Doctor Mid-Nite. [12] Also, Joy Osmani was cast as Paula Brooks/Tigress, Neil Hopkins was cast as Lawrence Crusher/Crock/Sportsmaster, and Nelson Lee was chosen as Dr. Ito/Dragon King, members of the Society of Injustice. [13] In April 2019, Hina Khan was cast as Anaya Bowin. [14] In October 2020, Nick Tarabay joined the cast as a regular series as Eclipse, while Jonathan Cake was cast as Shade and Ysa Penarejo was cast in an undained role in the recurring capabilities for season two. [11] Designer costume designer LJ Shannon tried to stay as true to comic tradition as possible in his designs. Each dresses are utilitarian with individual looks. Johns described Dr Mid-Nite as [a] little steampunky with fabric and leather and Hourman as a bit smoother. [32] Legacy Effects created a S.T.R.I.P.E. for use during filming. [33] Filming had begun on 14 March 2019,[34] with Glen Winter directing the pilot. [35] Christopher Manley and Scott Beck were cinematography directors of the series. [37] Filming occurs throughout the Atlanta metropolitan area, including: Marietta, Virginia-Highland, Duluth, Lithia Springs, Dallas,[34] Marietta Square, West End, Westlake High School, Atlanta Center for Medical Research,[38] Campbell Middle School, Paulding County, Smyrna, Arbor Place Mall, Vinings,[39] Mableton, and Douglas County High School. [40] Walter Garcia is the series' stunt coordinator and second unit director. He was hired to help Stargirl staff have a personality and be alive when fighting with him. [33] The series will continue filming in Atlanta for the second season,[41] with filming starting in late October 2020. [42] Zoic Studios visual effects provided visual effects for the series. [18] According to Johns, Stargirl was the first Warner Bros. TELEVISION series to use preview (a process most commonly used by feature films) for its effects scenes. [33] The preview was handled by The Third Floor, [36] Johns brought his experience working on the films Wonder Woman (2017), Aquaman (2018) and Shazam! (2019) to help the series have visuals not seen in superhero shows before. [33] Music in June 2019, Pinar Toprak revealed that it would be composing for the series. [43] The stargirl release premiered at DC Universe on May 18, 2020,[44] and consists of 13 episodes. [45] The series was originally intended to premiere on May 11, 2020. [46] The series premieres on 4K Ultra HD in DC Universe. [47] In November 2019, it was announced that The CW would broadcast each episode the day after its release on the streaming service, with each episode available to stream on The CW's online platforms after its broadcast. [26] Stargirl began airing on The CW on May 19, 2020, at 8 p.m.[44] Some episodes were removed when it aired on The CW to allow network ads, especially about eight minutes in each of the first two episodes. [32] DC Universe broadcasts the full episodes.[33] and Johns said that as of the third episode, both releases are almost identical. [32] The series' release plans changed and it stayed in post-production longer to accommodate the broadcast on The CW to achieve the adjustments that had to be made. [36] The deleted scenes in the first episode of CW's broadcast included: the setting of photographs of Barbara Whitmore's new work, and Pat's car shop; an interaction between Courtney and Cindy Burman in the corridors of Blue Valley High School that Alex Zalben of Decider said was clear for later but helped strengthen Courtney's emotional arc; and the by Mark Ashworth as a mysterious, extremely creepy bearded janitor, who Zalben said was more of a fun Easter egg that will pay dividends along the way. [16] and Courtney finding an article in the newspaper about Starman and The second season of the series will be broadcast exclusively on The CW,[28] and is scheduled to air in 2021. [49] Marketing On December 7, 2019, a teaser trailer was released. [50] In early August 2020, The CW released several posters for its Arrowverse series with superheroes wearing face masks, including Stargirl, with all posters titled Real Heroes Wear Masks. This marketing tactic was used to underline the importance of wearing masks while in public to help stop the spread of COVID-19. The pilot episode was tied for second best debut of the series at The CW for the 2019-20 season with Nancy Drew after Batwoman.[78] and was the best premiere of the summer series since the line of which it is anyway? ninth season in 2013. [79] During the first seven episodes of the season, Stargirl had an average of 0.2 for adults ages 18 to 49 and about 1 million initial viewers per episode, which was up to The CW's Arrowverse series. [51] Critical response to Rotten Tomatoes, the series has an approval rating of 89% based on 38 reviews, with an average rating of 7.6/10.0. The website's critical consensus says: A perfect stellar series for anyone looking for some hope, Stargirl is a delicious fun that the whole family can enjoy. [80] In Metacritic, it has a weighted average score of 68 out of 100 based on 8 reviews, indicating generally favorable reviews. [81] CNN's Brian Lowry described the series as barely looking to reinvent the wheel, or even expand the mould. However, its mix of solids, clever writing and youthful exuberance sheds a brighter light than most. [82] Daniel Fienberg of The Hollywood Reporter did a review saying Derivative, but you should fill the hole in the form of superhero-story in your heart he wrote: The result is that a show that is often derived to the point of distraction could actually fill a need for viewers able to concentrate on their occasional charms until better superhero shows return. [83] Arrowverse Main article: Crisis on Infinite Earths (Arrowverse) Stargirl and her team were briefly introduced at the Arrowverse Crisis on Infinite Earths crossing in January 2020.[84][85] from images from the episode The Justice Society. [86] Stargirl is set in a new Earth-2, created during the crossing. [84] Stargirl from the pre-Crisis Earth-1 had previously appeared in three episodes of the second season of Legends of Tomorrow, played by Sarah Grey, between October 2016 and February 2017. [87] As for any suitable crossing with the Arrowverse, Johns and Bassinger were interested in the idea. In April 2020, Johns said, right now the main concern is to make sure that this show is great, that these characters are great, that they have their own stories and that they have the right screen time and the right episodes to develop on their own. So I hope that in the future we can do something fun, but the first season is about making sure that Stargirl is the best show it possibly can be. Bassinger added that there had already been a preliminary discussion about crossing with The Flash, and was hoping to cross with Melissa Benoist on Supergirl.
